英语-阅读理解(共15个小题)

Passage 1

What if you were told there was a way you may strengthen your cognitive skills and heighten your intelligence, and all you had to do was learn to strike up basic conversations in another language?

It probably sounds great, because if you're like most you would love to be able to speak a second language. But then, you recall your experience in high school foreign language—boring rote memorization and long hours with little progress—and perhaps it doesn't sound so good any more.

But, what if you were told it would take only 10 days to be on your way to becoming bilingual? Most people recognize the many benefits of learning a foreign language: You can travel to foreign countries and feel comfortable, be a more productive and enticing employee in today's competitive job market, and immerse yourself in the vast cultures that surround you.

But now, the collective evidence from a number of recent studies suggests that the bilingual experience improves the brain's so-called executive function—a command system that directs the attention processes that we use for planning, solving problems, and performing various other mentally demanding tasks.

These processes include the ability to ignore distractions to stay focused, switching attention willfully from one thing to another, and holding information in the mind—like remembering a sequence of directions while driving.

Even better, new approaches to learning mean you can learn a new language without the endless repetition, homework, and memorization. One of the most powerful actually trains people to start speaking a new language in as little as 10 days! In fact, it's so powerful, even the FBI has purchased it!

Passage 2

Elizabeth Blackwell was born in England in 1821, and moved to New York City when she was ten years old. One day she decided that she wanted to become a doctor. That was nearly impossible for a woman in the middle of the nineteenth century. After writing many letters asking for admission (录取) to medical schools, she was finally accepted by a doctor in Philadelphia. She was so determined that she taught school and gave music lessons to get money for the cost of schooling.

In 1849, after graduation from medical school, she decided to further her education in Paris.

She wanted to be a surgeon (外科医师), but a serious eye problem forced her to give up the idea.

Upon returning to the United States, she found it difficult to start her own practice because she was a woman. By 1857, Elizabeth and her sister, also a doctor, along with another woman doctor, managed to open a new hospital, the first for women and children. Besides being the first woman physician and founding her own hospital, she also set up the first medical school for women.

- 21. Why couldn't Elizabeth Blackwell realize her dream of becoming a surgeon? ()
- A. She decided to further her education in Paris.
- B.A serious eye problem stopped her.
- C. She couldn't get admitted to medical school.
- D. It was difficult for her to start a practice in the United States.

 - B. Nineteen years
 - C. Eight years
 - D. Thirty-six years
 - 24. According to the passage, all of the following are "firsts" in the life of Elizabeth

Blackwell, except that she ().

- A. was the first woman doctor
- B. and several other women founded the first hospital for women and children
- C. became the first woman physician
- D. set up the first medical school for women
- 25. Elizabeth Blackwell spent most of her life in ().
- A. Paris
- B. the United States
- C. England
- D. New York City

Passage 3

Of all the components of a good night's sleep, dreams seem to be least within our control. In dreams, a window opens into a world where logic is suspended and dead people speak. A century ago, Freud formulated his revolutionary theory that dreams were the disguised shadows of our unconscious desires and fears; by the late 1970s, neurologists had switched to thinking of them as just "mental noise"-the random byproducts of the neural repair work that goes on during sleep. Now researchers suspect that dreams are part of the mind's emotional thermostat, regulating moods while the brain is "off line." And one leading authority says that these intensely powerful mental events can be not only harnessed but actually brought under conscious control, to help us sleep and feel better. "It's your dream," says Rosalind Cartwright, chair of psychology at Chicago's Medical Center, "if you don't like it, change it."

The link between dreams and emotions shows up among the patients in Cartwright's clinic. Most people seem to have more bad dreams early in the night, progressing toward happier ones before awakening, suggesting that they are working through negative feelings generated during the day. Because our conscious mind is occupied with daily life we don't always think about the emotional significance of the day's events-until, it appears, we begin to dream.

And this process need not be left to the unconscious. Cartwright believes one can exercise conscious control over recurring bad dreams. As soon as you awaken, identify what is upsetting about the dream. Visualize how you would like it to end instead; the next time it occurs. Try to wake up just enough to control its course. With much practice people can learn to, literally, do it in their sleep.

At the end of the day, there's probably little reason to pay attention to our dreams at all unless they keep us from sleeping or "we wake up in panic," Cartwright says. Terrorism, economic uncertainties and general feelings of insecurity have increased people's anxiety. Those suffering from persistent nightmares should seek help from a therapist. For the rest of us, the brain has its ways of working through bad feelings. Sleep-or rather dream-on it and you'll feel better in the morning.

- 26. Nowadays, researchers doubt that ().
- A. Dreams are the disguised shadows of our unconscious desires and fears.
- B. Dreams are just as random byproducts of the neural repair work.
- C. Dreams are the emotional thermostat that regulates our moods.
- D. Dreams are windows which opens into a world where logic is suspended and dead people speak.
 - 27. Which of the following statement is not true?
 - A. Bad dreams cannot be controlled
 - B. Most people tend to have bad dreams early in the night
 - C. Those suffering from continuous nightmares ought to seek help from a therapist
 - D.Insecurity and uncertainties have made people more anxious
 - 28.According to the passage, most people dream during their sleep because ().
 - A. They like dreaming.
 - B. They are worried.
 - C. Dreams could make them sleep better.
 - D. They don't always think about their emotions while busy with daily life.
 - 29. From Cartwright, how to prevent from more bad dreams? (
 - A. Figure out what contributes to the bad dreams
 - B. Sleep as early as you can
 - C. Relax yourself before sleep
 - D. Try to keep yourself in your dreams

- 30. Which of the following words can best describe this passage? ()
- A. Dreams
