J. Sterling Morton was considered the founder of Arbor Day for his contribution. During the years between 1867-1882, Morton dropped out of politics in order to spend more time promoting agriculture in Nebraska. He supported better farming methods, conservation programs, and tree planting. In 1872, the Nebraska State Board of Agriculture adopted Morton's resolution to create Arbor Day, a day set aside to plant trees. Prizes were offered to counties and individuals for planting properly the largest number of trees on that day. It was estimated that more than one million trees were planted in Nebraska on the first Arbor Day. Today, all 50 states celebrate this holiday, although the dates may vary to match each local climate's best time to plant trees.

18. Read the following paragraph and choose the best topic sentence from the four options that follow. Write the corresponding letter of your choice on the answer sheet.

A recent study shows that over 5 million children in the United States suffer from asthma (哮喘). More than 3,500 kids in California took part in the study. About half of those kids lived in areas that had lots of air pollution. The other half lived in areas that had clean air. After studying the kids for five years, doctors found that about 260 of them developed asthma. Most of the kids who developed asthma lived in towns that were heavily polluted. Doctors say that breathing too much polluted air caused the asthma cases. Despite this, it is still recommended that children should play outside but only on days when air pollution isn't serious.

- A. Doctors warn that children with asthma should not play outside.
- B. People should be aware of their roles in preventing air pollution.

Whether it's studying for exams or working on a project, we've all been under immense stress at some point. When it gets a bit overwhelming, we can reach a level of exhaustion that is unprecedented—the dreadful burnout. What can we do to avoid the evils of burnout? There are two tips that may help you. Psychologist Albert Bandura's theory can be beneficial. His idea is that you should believe in your ability to complete a task at hand. Burnout isn't just caused by working long hours. A feeling that you are capable of succeeding means that a difficult task might be less exhausting. Finding ways to express your creative side may also help. Not everyone has creative aspects to their jobs, and, therefore, they need to find other outlets. Being negative can be incredibly draining. They could paint, write or take part in local theatre. All these things may help to detach them from the overwhelming stress that may exist in their working life.
